Dear Mom + Dad:

I have just received a letter from you saying that you expected me home for Christmas. Well as you can see, I am still here and it does not look as though I will make it. Don't be disheartened though, I'm getting there slow but sure. This week the battalion received 100 new replacements from the States. Three of them were assigned to work with me. I am now in the process of teaching them all & know so that they will be able to take over as soon as I leave. When the adjutant assigned them, he told me to teach them quickly because he thought I would be leaving very soon. As it stands now on Jan 1 I shall be eligible for discharge. Just imagine in 22 more days - 3 weeks. Boy! I've waited along time. Of course I won't be discharged right away, but the mere fact that I will be eligible for discharge makes me happy enough. It will now be necessary for me to start sweating out a boat. I figure that shouldn't take any longer than 2 months. Therefore, I figure to be home sometime towards the end of February. — maybe sooner.

I received a box from Lefty & Claire the other day. It was put up and shipped by SS Pierce. It was really swell. It had lobster anchovies, and all kinds of other good things. But, you probably know all about it.

I have been wondering lately about my war bonds. You haven't mentioned them and I am wondering whether you are still receiving them or not. Please write and let me know.

Well that's all for ~~now~~ now. I am enclosing a few more pictures.

Your Loving Son
